News and Thoughts...

from State Librarian Mary J. Soucie

It's hard to believe that this is the first Flickertale article of my second year as State Librarian! The first year absolutely flew by and I have loved every minute of it. I have thoroughly enjoyed visiting the libraries and meeting the people that I did in my first year. I hope to increase the number of libraries that I visit in 2015, so please consider extending an invitation.

We have numerous goals for 2015. We will kick off a new project called "State Librarian for the Day". I will visit one public library each month and shadow the staff. I am greatly looking forward to this. Our PR Guru, Kristin Byram will be coordinating this project with the libraries.

I hope to get out to the libraries for other reasons as well. One of my areas of interest is staff development and I have several presentations that I've created over the years and would love to present them to library staff. Topics include customer service, social networking library style, programs for adults, readers advisory, or a topic of your choice. I also enjoy teaching patrons and would love to present a class on Facebook or other technology topics.

As we have previously shared, the State Library will be kicking off two different leadership initiatives, ILEAD-USA and L3: Libraries, Literacy, Leadership. We've been sharing information about both opportunities and are looking for participants, instructors and mentors. If you are interested in ILEAD-USA, you may contact Eric Stroshane or BreAnne Meier in Library Development. If you are interested in L3, you may contact me.

In addition to the Summer Reading workshops, this year Sarah Matusz will present a webinar on running a summer reading program for all new librarians. The State Library hopes to partner with our public and school libraries, along with DPI to combat the summer slide with a new initiative for the summer reading programs. We are working out the final details and will share more information soon.

Beginning in January, the State Library will once again be home to the ND Center for the Book. Shari Mosser will be the Center for the Book Coordinator. We plan to host "Letters for Literature" in 2016. We have had several winners in the past and are excited to once again engage ND students in this excellent program.

The State Library will continue to develop its partnership with organizations such as DPI, NDLA, the ND Humanities Council, and other state agencies. We will also strengthen our services to libraries of all types in ND. It is an exciting time for libraries and we look forward to continuing to help you develop the services you offer to patrons. One way we do this is through the databases that we provide. We will feature one of our online resources each month in the Flickertale, on our website, through webinars and PR materials. Contact Kristin at ndslpa@nd.gov for more information.

Three top priorities of the State Library are: service to libraries, service to legislators and their staff, and service to all North Dakotans. If we can assist you in some way, please don't hesitate to contact me at msoucie@nd.gov. The State Library staff is open to ideas for new ways we can serve you and look forward to hearing from you.

ONLINE LIBRARY RESOURCE

FREGAL MUSIC

Freegal Music is a “free and legal” music service that allows downloads and streaming provided by the North Dakota State Library. There is no software to download, and there are no digital rights management (DRM) restrictions. Freegal Music presents over 8 million songs from around the world, including the Sony Music Catalog. It has hundreds of music genres and new songs are added regularly.

The service also presents over 15,000 music videos, which are in the MP4 format with no DRM. Videos count as 2 downloads because videos are considered premium content. Users are limited to 5 downloads per week and may stream for 3 hours per day. Music downloads are in the MP3 format. Freegal Music will work on most computers, players, tablets, or smart phones. Get the free Freegal Music app at the Apple Store, Google Play (for Android), and SlideMe.org (for Kindle Fire).

To access Freegal Music you must have a valid North Dakota library card. The Remote Access Number will not work. If your public library does not issue library cards or has a circulation system that is incompatible with SIP2 authentication, you can always get a free library card from the North Dakota State Library at <http://library.nd.gov/librarycard.html>.

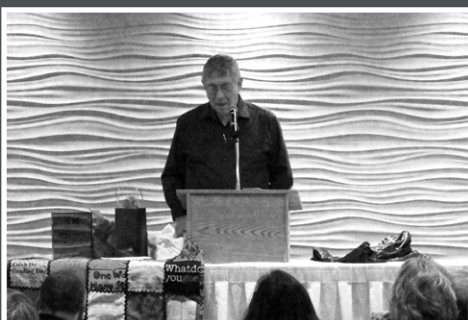

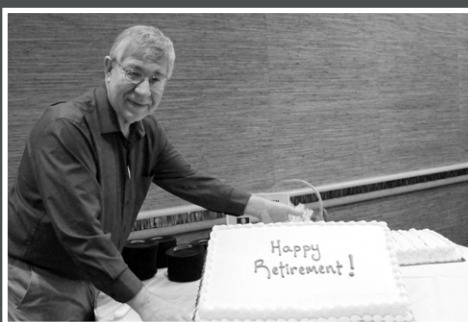

The screenshot shows the North Dakota Library System website for Freegal Music. At the top, there is a search bar with the text "Search All" and "Press enter or go...", a "Browse A-Z" button, and a "Login" link. Below the search bar is a navigation menu with links for HOME, MUSIC VIDEOS, MOST POPULAR, NEW RELEASES, GENRES, and FAQ.

On the left side, there is an "Announcements" section with a sub-section titled "Improved Search Capabilities!". It states: "Now you can Search All for Albums, Artists, Composers, Songs at the same time." It provides examples: "Elvis Blue Suede Shoes", "Mozart Piano Concerto", and "Loba Shakira". It also says: "Enter your terms and hit enter or click 'Go'."

The main content area features several sections:

37.8 Years of Library Service

Jerry Kaup retired from his position as the Director of the Minot Public Library after 37.8 impressive and storied years. Beyond his service and dedication to Minot, his career included impressive contributions at the state and regional levels. He served as President of the North Dakota Library Association from 1983-1985, two consecutive terms as President of the Mountain Plains Library Association from 1988-1990, and most recently as a member of the North Dakota Library Coordinating Council.

During Jerry's MPLA presidency, he oversaw the addition of the eleventh member state, Oklahoma, to its constituency—one of the very rare instances of geographic growth during the Association's 65-year history. As a member of the Coordinating Council, he assisted in drafting our state's Standards for Public Libraries. Perhaps of most wide-reaching significance, he was also instrumental in establishing State Aid to Public Libraries during North Dakota's 1979 legislative session, an act which has benefitted our state's public libraries ever since. In 2004, NDLA recognized Jerry Kaup as our state's Librarian of the Year.

Most of Jerry's accomplishments aren't so well documented, however. Throughout his career, his dedication to developing librarianship and mentoring other librarians has deeply and lastingly impacted many of us. It would not surprise me in the least if every person reading this has a story about Jerry or a lesson they learned from him. He recognized the importance of professional networks and friendships spanning institutions and states, and he cherished the connections he made. This was exemplified by the more than 140 people who showed up for his retirement party from at least four different states, despite the freezing rain and bitter cold.

When you strengthen libraries you truly do improve the communities they serve. Subsequently, Jerry Kaup's work, passion, leadership, and dedication had significant impact not just on Minot, but throughout North Dakota, and the nation. Happy retirement, Jerry—you've earned it!

Free Access to National Technical Information Service Resources for the Public

The National Technical Information Service (NTIS) is broadening public access to their materials. NTIS is offering free public access to some of its Federal science and technology reports through their National Technical Reports Library (NTRL) database. The public can now conduct a basic search and download five PDF documents per session. An account must be created before usage.

The U.S. Government Publishing Office (GPO) and NTIS have worked collaboratively over the years finding ways to have information exchanges including the Depository Access to Reports Scientific and Technical (DARTS) program that ran for four years from 2007-2011.

Currently, you can search NTIS through GPO's Catalog of Government Publications' Metalib feature. Metalib is GPO's federated search engine that searches multiple U.S. Federal Government databases at once. On the NTIS Web site, users are encouraged to research in GPO's Federal Digital System (FDsys) before searching and purchasing a report through NTIS.

NTIS was established more than 60 years ago. It is the largest resource for technical, engineering, and scientific related research. According to NTIS, their mission is to "support the Department of Commerce mission to promote the nation's economic growth by providing access to information that stimulates innovation and discovery." Learn more about NTIS at <http://www.ntis.gov/about/>.

E-rate News

The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) Form 471 application filing window for Funding Year 2015 opened January 14th and will close at 11:59 PM EDT on Thursday, March 26th.

Your Form 470 must be posted for 28 days prior to filing the Form 471. Thursday, February 26, 2015 is the last day to post an FCC Form 470 to the Universal Service Administration Company (USAC) website or issue a Request for Proposal (RFP).

Al's E-rate Tips and Advice:

- In order to evaluate the bids you receive, you must construct an evaluation. A detailed description along with an example of an evaluation is available at:
- If you only get one bid, write an e-mail or memo to yourself noting that you only received one and put this in your E-rate file (keep a file for every year with all copies of letters, communications with Schools and Libraries Division, your bid evaluation, and copies of the forms submitted.)
- DON'T WAIT to submit your Form 471. The sooner, the better!
- Discounts are calculated and reported to USAC on Block 4 of the FCC Form 471. If you file online and follow the instructions, the calculations detailed below are performed for you based on the data you provide when you complete the form.
- Divide the number of students eligible for National School Lunch Program (NSLP) in the public school district in which the library outlet or branch is located by the total number of students in that public school district. Use this number and the urban or rural status of the library outlet or branch to look up the discount on the Discount Matrix. Make note: Cass County is considered "Urban" based on Metropolitan Statistical Area data.
- Services and products for which discounts are requested must be described on the Item 21 Attachment and postmarked by the close of the application filing window. Without the Item 21 Attachment, the application is ineligible.

If you have any questions about E-rate, feel free to contact Al Peterson at 701-328-4021 or alpeterson@nd.gov.
