Talking Book Services

Braille and Audio Reading Download

You've probably heard of Talking Books by now, or may even be a current patron, but have you heard of BARD?

BARD stands for Braille and Audio Reading Download, and with it, you have access to the full catalog of books and magazines from the National Library Services (NLS) for the Blind and Print Disabled. In the same way that you would order books through the Library's Talking Book service, BARD allows you to search, download, and read any of the thousands of titles in our database without having to wait on cartridges coming in the mail. You can use BARD in a regular computer browser, in an Android or iOS phone application, with your current talking book player, or with your own commercial player.

In order to use BARD, you must be part of the Talking Books program. You can find the application for Talking Books at <http://www.library.nd.gov/talkingbooks.html>. If you are already a Talking Books patron and are interesting in utilizing BARD, give us a call at 701-328-1408 or email tbooks@nd.gov and our Reader's Advisors can get you set up with an account!

Copyright Overview

by Shari Mosser

Section 108 – Copyright Exceptions for Libraries and Archives

I am not a lawyer. Any advice given is for informational purposes and does not constitute legal advice.

Title 17, section 108 of the US Code permits libraries and archives to use copyrighted material in specific ways without permission from the copyright holder. This does not replace fair use, which is explained in section 107 and will be talked about in a later issue. Librarians, archivists, and library users can utilize fair use just like everyone else. In fact, fair use can apply to many cases in the library when section 108 does not.

Section 108 permits libraries and archives to:

- Make one copy of an item held by a library for ILL.
- Make up to three copies of a damaged, deteriorated, lost or stolen work for the purpose of replacement. However, this only applies if a replacement copy cannot be found at a fair price.
- Make up to three copies of an unpublished work held by the library for the purpose of preservation. If the copy is digital, it cannot be circulated outside the library.
- Make one copy of an entire work for a user or library who requests it if the work isn't available at a fair price.

Library Vision Survey

By Mary Soucie, State Librarian

The State Library, in partnership with the North Dakota Library Coordinating Council (NDLCC), is seeking feedback from the library community about Library Vision grants. Please consider completing the survey at <https://forms.office.com/g/5VwExygVg6> even if you have never applied for or received a Library Vision grant. The survey is short and should take fifteen minutes or less to complete.

We are hoping to get feedback on how we can improve the grant process, ideas for future grant opportunities and specifically if the match requirement is prohibitive to libraries that are applying for grants. We are hoping for a broad response to the survey so that we have as much information as possible as we consider changes to the process.

Thank you in advance for taking the time to complete the survey. Our goal is for the Library Vision grant program to be as beneficial as possible to the North Dakota Library Community, and we need your input to meet that goal.

If you have comments outside of the survey questions or would like to have a conversation with me about the Library Vision grants, please email me at msoucie@nd.gov or call me at (701)328-4654 (O) or (701)516-6166 (C). I look forward to receiving the feedback to share with the NDLCC, implementing meaningful changes and offering grant opportunities that meet the needs of the library community.

equinoxEDU: Spotlight on Going Fine Free

Join us for a discussion on Going Fine Free in your library! Is your library considering going fine free? Are you curious about what it takes to make that happen?

In this live webinar, we will present a series of considerations for any library contemplating a move to becoming a fine-free library. We will explore what is involved in implementing a systematic shift to becoming fine-free – either permanently or on a trial basis. Without focusing on any specific ILS, we will offer suggestions for data review, requirement definitions, roll-out procedures, and the importance of identifying potential exemptions to the application of a new fine-free policy.

Explore the 1950 U.S. Census With Ancestry Library Edition News From ProQuest

Effective April 1, the 1950 U.S. Census was released by the National Archives. Ancestry® will begin indexing the information, state by state, and make it available in Ancestry Library Edition.

Why is the 1950 U.S. Census a big deal?

- Over 151 million people were recorded in this census (14% more than in 1940). About 30 million of those were age 9 and under, appearing in a census for the first time.
- This census reflects significant migration, including the second wave of the Great Migration, where many Black Americans left the South seeking a better life.
- You can find close relatives—maybe even your parents or grandparents.
- You'll learn what your family's world was like in 1950.
- The 1950 Census marks the first appearance of “baby boomers.” And, for the first time, it captures American ex-patriots living abroad, students at college, and people owning a television.

Ancestry Library Edition is only available at your local library.
