REPORT OF THE DIRECTOR, NORTH DAKOTA STATE LIBRARY COMMISSION—1950-1952

North Dakota is entering a new era of development. It is probably outrunning many another state in the progress it is making. The evidence offered by the requests which come to the State Library Commission are indicative of the thinking of the people of this state. This attitude of mind means the building of the people at the same time that this building of economic progress is taking place. It is a healthy omen. Cultural and material pursuits should balance each other, lest North Dakota be overtaken by the lopsidedness of basic values found in the world today. Library interests and activities count big in keeping balances, and though results of library service are not measurable in dollars and cents, they are perhaps of as much or more value in measure of worth.

THE STATE LIBRARY COMMISSION AT WORK

While sitting at my desk writing this report, the business office adjoining hums with the clack of typewriters, mimeograph and adding machines. Across the hall the girls are rushing to fill requests, searching in stacks and files for books, periodicals and pamphlets. At the same time a force in the mailing department is packing, wrapping, tying and putting mailing labels on the materials which are brought to them. These services are mostly for the schools and the clubs. Two floors below one sees somewhat similar operations where boxes containing traveling libraries are being sent to communities hither and yon over the state. The Bismarck mail truck official who picks up the boxes and big mail sacks, tells us that he gets from the State Library Commission more parcel post than from the capitol building. Today, October 7, 1952, a typical day, 645 books are being mailed out. These go to rural areas and small towns all over the state. Service is for the areas that have inadequate library service. Since North Dakota is mostly a rural state, it means that every county in the state, without exception, — all 53 of them, have received some service from the State Library Commission. Putting it another way, mail has been directed to 470 towns out of the 615 postoffice towns listed in the atlas for North Dakota. Some 12,000 books per month have gone out during the busiest months. This past biennial period has seen an increase in circulation reaching an all-time high and there is every indication that the figures will increase as time goes on.

Many factors contribute to this upsurge of requests which come to the State Library Commission. One would name as one of the first the general buildup which has come to this state because of new pursuits relating to water power, lignite and oil. This in itself is having the effect of arousing a potent curiosity. Like a mirror in a car, it is serving also to cause a look backward in order to know how to go forward. Books afford the best view and hence best satisfy the curiosity.

Another factor which we feel rates high in promoting library progress, and which will continue to have an even greater effect is the establishment of library courses in all schools of higher education. This has been one of the fond dreams of the director. She has visited these schools not only once, but two and three times and has conferred with the presidents and deans of education and in cases has demonstrated work by conducting library classes. Augmenting this dream was her appointment by the Director of Secondary Education as chairman of Library Standards for the secondary schools of the state. These standards are incorporated in the revised edition of the ADMINISTRATIVE MANUAL FOR NORTH DAKOTA HIGH SCHOOLS. Since the schools of higher education will need to teach the courses which will prepare the teacher-librarian, the circle of library interests is now running throughout the schools. This circle may be thought of as a basic circle from which tangents of library promotion will move in every direction.

Still another factor in library promotion is due to the work done over the state in making people aware of this service given by the state: speeches, many of them, for all sorts of occasions; articles written for magazines, state and national; the regular publication by the State Library Commission, LIBRARY NOTES AND NEWS; workshops in cooperation with the Parent-Teacher Association held in six sections of the state; visitations and again many of them to public libraries, school libraries and to points where there were no libraries but should be. Sometimes a library was organized, or was re-organized, or was otherwise put onto its feet, as it were. The problem to be dealt with might be book selection, or cataloging, or public relations, or building, or securing funds, or legal procedures. Anything and sometimes most unusual things presented themselves. With it all, the people of North Dakota have for the most part given excellent response, but whatever the reaction, the people have become more library conscious and with satisfying and surprising results which are shown by the letters and questions that come our way.

A fourth factor should be mentioned and that resides in the life conditions of the people themselves. As North Dakota enters this new era of its history, the older people who have pioneered, who have assumed the responsibility of raising their families and have had the resourcefulness and the stick-to-it-iveness to come through all manner of discouragements, — these people who have built this state — are now retiring and are wanting to catch up, as it were, on their reading, and make up for what they have missed. They want the better things, the old classics and literature and verse from which their parents often quoted.

And more than this, they want that which they have missed for their children and their children's children. This three-way urge, therefore, first of the grandparents, then their urge that the young folks have reading material, and thirdly that the little ones, too, of pre-school age, be not forgotten is also doing its big part in promoting library service.

Tied closely to this factor is the factor that North Dakota appropriates no funds for adult education and no funds for kindergarten. It means that the State Library Commission is the only organized state agency which approaches and contributes to the education of these groups. This would serve as an excellent argument, we feel, — especially in light of the service now given by the State Library Commission, for an appropriation at least  $\frac{1}{4}$  again as large as our present budget. Extension plans to meet growing needs in other phases of the library work could easily take an equal amount.

MOVING AHEAD

COUNTY LIBRARY. Approval for the second county library in North Dakota was noted at the general election, November 4, 1952, for Stutsman County. Jamestown Public Library will become a city-County Library. Mrs. Anna Bensch is librarian. She had much cooperation from the Homemakers Clubs and other organizations.

LIBRARY COURSES IN SCHOOLS OF HIGHER EDUCATION. These courses will provide a basic understanding and appreciation of meaning of books and libraries by those who are training as teacher-librarians in the state.

REVISION OF LIBRARY STANDARDS FOR THE HIGH SCHOOLS OF NORTH DAKOTA. Meeting library standards by the high schools of the state will help to place North Dakota in the educational bracket desired as compared with other states.

PUBLICATIONS. LIBRARY NOTES AND NEWS, the official publication of the State Library Commission. Calls for this have increased our mailing list from some 160 to 1,300. It goes to librarians, state and national; to school librarians, county superintendents, heads of schools, state officials, legislators, and presidents of state organizations.

ARTICLES. The State Library Commission has appeared in the following publications: A.L.A. Bulletin, November, 1951, "From Bookshelves to Mailboxes." A prize winning essay in the American Library Association American Heritage contest. NORTH DAKOTA TEACHER, March, 1952, "Library Commission's Service." LIBRARY JOURNAL, June 1, 1952. "Books in North Dakota." NORTH DAKOTAN, March 1952, Picture in Traveling Library Department. NORTH DAKOTAN, July, 1952. Cultural Advancement in North Dakota Keeping Pace With Industrial Progress."

PROGRAM PARTICIPATIONS. A representative list. American Library Association. VISITATIONS. When making trips to the larger towns in the different sections of the state, as listed above, the director made it opportune to visit the public and the school libraries in these cities and in neighboring towns. These additional towns visited and given library service by either the director or members of the staff are as follows: Edgeley, Oakes, LaMoure, Ashley, Zeeland, Westhope, Hettinger, Turtle Lake, Mott, Underwood, Riverdale, Garrison, Westhope, Crosby, Kenmare, Mohall, Devils Lake, Bottineau, Lakota, Petersburg, Larimore, Hillsboro and Hatton.

DEPARTMENTAL REPORTS

Reference Department

The Reference Department continues to be mainly concerned with the filling of requests from clubs, high schools, libraries and individuals in areas where adequate library facilities are not available. There were 4,913 separate requests of this kind during the year July, 1951 to June 30, 1952. Included in this number was a large percentage of reference questions that required a good deal of thought and searching for satisfactory material. Since our circulation is almost entirely by mail, the selection of books in most cases is left to the person filling the requests. All of this adds to the interest but also the complications of the department.

The reference librarian has at her disposal in filling the requests a collection of some 20,000 books exclusive of the school collections and the traveling libraries. These are supplemented by a large number of assorted magazines and an outstanding file of pamphlets, and clippings. A special collection of this department is the North Dakota collection.

Our service to the women's club of the state grows with each year. In the spring the Library Commission prepares and sends to the clubs a list of suggested club topics to assist in the preparation of the year's club programs. In connection with this service, the Commission supplies material necessary for preparing program lessons. Any club that wishes to register for regular service, files its program with the Commission, and without further request from the club, material is sent out in advance of each meeting on the topic for the program. Our records show that we sent literature to 111 clubs during the past year.

A special service that has meant a great deal to families in the small towns and rural areas of North Dakota away from a local library is the one we call Books-a-Month. Under this plan, a family receives a box of books each month. A file is kept of the reading preferences, the age range and the size of the family registered for this service, and each time a box of books is returned another is sent without further request.

In addition to the reference work, this department handles the cataloging for all the books in the main collection. Books are classified, accessioned, book cards and pockets are made, and the books are lettered and shellacked and put on the shelves for distribution.

SCHOOL DEPARTMENT

Most of the schools in the rural areas of the state have inadequate libraries and insufficient funds to purchase books. In order to supplement the libraries in these schools, the State Library Commission maintains a large school collection. The collection is composed of titles included in Bulletin #5. These are called Reading Circle books, for they are the approved books for which pupils are given a Reading Certificate by the County Superintendent if they read two books each month during the school year. The plan is very popular with the county superintendents, teachers and pupils, and as a result we have an average of 700 to 800 teachers each year who request books each month. It is interesting to note that if we could add to our circulation the possible number of readers for each book while it is in the school, our circulation figure would be several thousand higher each month. The school service has assumed almost gigantic proportions.

TRAVELING LIBRARY DEPARTMENT

Renewed interest in the services of the Traveling Library has all but swamped this Department. We began rejuvenating the library boxes during the summer only to find our need for books far exceeded our supply. Boxes are made up for Grades 1 to 6, 1 to 8, 7 to 9, High School and Adults. These go out for three months at a time, with the privilege of renewal. Our aim is to have the country school or some center in every community which is without library service receive a box or boxes of these books. A cold blizzard day will be converted into a day of joy with books from the Traveling Library at hand. L. L.

LIBRARY STATISTICS

26.6% of the people in North Dakota have adequate public library facilities
 11.1% of the people have public library service available in their towns, but it is far from adequate 62.3% of the people have no public library service, and would be without library service of any kind if it were not for the services of the State Library Commission.

The State Library Commission circulation for this biennial period was 188,568.
