The American Flag

America 250: Steps to Building a Nation is a new series that highlights historical happenings that have helped shape our country! This twelve-part series will highlight events, symbols, and people.

The first symbol is the American flag.

History of the Flag

On June 14, 1777, the Continental Congress passed an act to establish a new flag for the new nation. This new flag must have "thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation." Betsy Ross, born Elizabeth Griscom, is most often credited with sewing the first official flag for the United States of America (Flag, n.d., & Morrison, 2024).

BITS OF TRIVIA

By Stacey Goldade

Did Santa Snub You?

Did you ask for an electric drill, a craft set, a certain board game, or a fishing pole for Christmas and did Santa ignore your request? Don't fret- try checking your local library for what you wanted! Yes, you'll have to return it after you're done using it, but maybe once you try that board game, you'll learn it's too involved for your young kids. Or once you're done with the drill, you'll realize that you like not having to find a place to store it!

Often, libraries call these kinds of collections "Library of Things," and North Dakota libraries have some exciting items being lent to their patrons.

- Sports items like pickleball racquets, disc golf sets, fishing poles, and life jackets.
- Tools like wrenches, engravers, ladders, paint rollers, and wheelbarrows.
- Things for your home like framed art prints, radon detectors, power use monitors, ice cream makers, stand mixers, food dehydrators, apple slicer-peelers, cookie cutters, and air fryers.
- Fun things like giant and regular-sized board games, jigsaw puzzles, loom knitting kits, video games, and ghost detector kits.
- Items to help you be creative like sewing machines, knitting kits, ring lights, camera tripods, and mobile hotspots.
- Kits for kids that include NASA kits, flash cards, robot kits, fairy tale kits, rock tumblers, and STEM kits.
- Party items like banquet tables, slide projectors, blow up movie screens, canopy tents, and cake pans for fun birthday cakes.
- Outdoor use items like metal detectors, ladder golf games, outdoor exploration kits, tents, camping stoves, bike pumps, bike repair kits, and snowshoes.
- Health related items like blood pressure cuffs and light therapy lamps.
- Activity passes to enter state parks and museums.

Libraries loan so much more than just books, DVDs and ebooks. Check your local library, or the state library, to see what unique items are available!

WebJunction Highlight

Library Foundational Training (LiFT) Series

WebJunction, in addition to the Idaho Commission for Libraries, have added new tutorials to their Library Foundational Training (LiFT) series.

Public Library Fundamentals explores the differences between various types of libraries, the fundamental principles of public libraries, and the core functions of a public library in its community. It also covers the code of ethics that guides the library profession.

The Reference Interview focuses on the skills needed to conduct an effective reference interview. Learn how to create a welcoming environment for library users and accurately identify their information needs.

You may already be familiar with the Alternative Basic Library Education (ABLE) courses, created by the Idaho Commission for Libraries, which emphasize essential skills like cataloging and collection management. While the ABLE courses remain popular, they were developed years ago and don't address some of today's realities in 21st century libraries. That's why the Idaho Commission for Libraries, in partnership with WebJunction, created Library Foundational Training.

These recorded tutorials, along with recordings from the Collection Management Series, are available in the WebJunction Course Catalog. Just look for LiFT: Library Foundational Training.
